Title: Birdwatcher

Author: Ann Greyson

Genre: Horror fiction, Thriller/Crime fiction, Ghost fiction, Paranormal fiction

Book Blurb:

Gillian and Lance Wincoff travel from Watchung, New Jersey to spend a week in a cabin in East Stroudsburg, Pennsylvania, an idyllic setting in the Poconos. It's the perfect vacation with their 12-year-old daughter, Abby, an avid birdwatcher. When Abby suddenly disappears from the cabin, Monroe County Sheriff Andy Kirkman and his team of deputies begin the search.

There are no signs of Abby, the facts in this case are hard to find. With the election approaching, Detective Philip Silverwood from the Pocono Mountain Regional Police Department inherits the case. Despite Sheriff Kirkman's impending retirement, he is willing to do whatever it takes to find out what happened to Abby.

The sad truth is, Abby fell victim to serial killer Joey Marks. Her spirit is restless, unable to cross over, and she begins to haunt the cabin, where her body was buried. Complications arise when Gail comes to that cabin to write her first novel, Murder in the Poconos, because murder is only part of the story.
